La pagination de The Cubicle Island atteint
strictement les limites techniques de la relieuse utilisée: 59 mm d'épaisseur. Le livre a été imprimé en impression digitale rotative sur OPBook 50 g, un papier semi transparent de faible grammage, et composé en microtravail avec une Garamond approchant celle utilisée dans le magazine The New Yorker.

The Cubicle Island is a post-digital, conceptual comic book project. It is an experiment with the distributed ramifications of digital labor. The Cubicle Island labors silently through the products of an extremely deskilled textual workforce, both human and non-human, and embraces the epistemic and technological accelerationism put forward by the interconnectedness of the global precarious.

Some history: the digital labor market, Amazon Mechanical Turk (AMT) was conceptualized and designed by Amazon in 2007. It responded to the need to expand computing infrastructure services in order to overcome the insurmountable technical drawbacks related to the task of merging duplicate product listings on the retailer's website. Since then, an array of different microtasking platforms and online labor markets burgeoned providing the leverage of the abilities of an unprecedented number of people via the web to perform complex computation. These services allow users to search, select and complete a variety of human intelligence tasks designed by third party contractors looking for a freelance, flexible and often unskilled labor force. The labor activity can be fulfilled at home without any direct management and it ranges from developing databases and filtering images to subscribing to YouTube channels and writing 'honest' reviews for Aliexpress.

The term microwork therefore represents a series of small tasks that are completed by many people over the Internet to comprise a large unified project. Microworkers are considered to be the operators of the smallest unit of work in a virtual assembly line. They are most often used to complete tasks that require human intelligence and for which no efficient algorithm has (yet) been devised. Every day, tens of thousands of microworkers sign in to the different online labor markets and individually complete tens or sometimes hundreds of different tasks. Microworkers find themselves in an important moment in the History of Labor; a stepping stone to Artificial General Intelligence's (AGI's) exponential acceleration of technology that 'promises a new era in social and economic abundance'. Microwork, whose distributed (human) deployment, BRICS-outsourced, platform-mediated, zero-hour contract regime with all the perks of minimal transactional frictions and absolute circumvention of applicable minimum wage laws is a sort of a cheap AI. It has been dubbed Artificial Artificial Intelligence (AAI).

Now, there is a twist. Some of these microworkers are programmers. They program bots that are custom made to respond to the most popular tasks published on the online labor markets. They make bots that perform image classification through opencv, others that are good in database aggregations, or that excel in brute-forcing massive website sign-ups, and occasionally DDOS attacks. These bots scan the cheaply secured labor platform hoping to find the task they were designed to complete. They have been dubbed blind hunters; each of them carrying one specialised wheapon that can only kill a single species in a vast ecosystem, with meager chances of succeeding, often feeding on roadkill. Spambots simulate human microworkers, themselves simulating Artificial Intelligence.

The Cubicle Island is a project that consists of a few hundred detexted desert island cartoons, for which I have solicited some 17000 textual contributions through the interface of a popular digital labor platform. With varied formulations for each subsequent call, I was explicitly asking microworkers to provide a funny text between 50-70 words for each of these cartoons - with mitigated results. For the entire production I have been following best practices of white and blacklisting. In order to keep spam and bots away, I diligently accumulated records of hundreds of alphanumeric codes that corresponded to each of the platform's microworkers. The first months were painful. Nothing came close to funny. Being a New Yorker cartoonist is after all no easy feat, I learned.

One day, I received a text that was different from the rest: instead of the 70-word blurbs I was used to copy, paste, print out, cut and pin on a wall-to-wall cork board I have expressly installed in my apartment in Athens, there came a 2275-word, multi-page transcript from an interview with Captain Beefheart. This is where I decided to swap my whitelist with the blacklist. By welcoming contributions from the most generic algorithms that were haunting this project from its inception, The Cubicle Island occupies a semantic textual field, an uncanny valley of Artificial Artificial Artificial Intelligence (AAAI).

Without sacrificing the cartoon's semantic complexity and reader engagement, The Cubicle Island puts the emphasis of comics in their (digitally) distributed, partly human labor. The percolation of the comic strip units through the reader swarm of the digital factories and their cheap algorithmic surrogates, calls into question the primacy of the punchline and the drawing as the defining factors of the cartoon format and the comic industry. In the age of surveillance capitalism's selective transparency, The Cubicle Island thematizes new formations of labor and leisure (the newly coined playbor). The Cubicle Island is a durational performance based on 50 years of desert island press cartoons that highlights the extreme isolation that comes with new regimes of work in the making of an international class of precarious cognitive workers.

"It's normal. Your brain is entering a phase that science now understands is literally crazy. The things people regret as elders from their teens is pretty typical thus far in my analysis. Google/read/ask old people around you. The Walmart greeters - ask them. People old enough to be a grandparent usually are easier to talk to and ask these kinds of questions from than your parents. Don't be afraid to ask questions - ask all the weird and embarrassing questions you want to ask - find an old person and ask away. Don't assume you'll grow old. That's the biggest mistake kids make - that they'll live to old age. Statistically you probably will so don't get an anxiety attack about it. But don't assume, learn to recognize when you are assuming versus when you need to ask more questions. Even if you don't know who to ask, ask in a journal or in your private soul. Don't ever let the madness in your brain tell you to do something that could lead to death. Always ask yourself when peer pressure happens - will this lead to me or someone else dying or at least is there a 10% chance or greater of someone getting injured? Don't risk it yet - it's like in a good game of Texas hold'em... hold 'em. It's not time to bet the whole "house" but you're entering the hardest part of your life you ever will enter. Now - I'm not even middle age - so maybe it gets harder after this but so far, my 16-21 ages were the worst of all and just get through it. Get through it with your virginity, your brains, your integrity, all intact. Plus - I know they all tease you about virginity, but in the end - we all know it's super hot to date a virgin.

The man relaxing under the tree is also uniquely."*

"As we lay up our boats for the winter, we had our end-of-season board meeting of the sailing club. We made our resolutions for next year, in particular having repairs done to the winch and the addition of a light winch for catamarans and dinghies reserved to the club. It's quite hard to haul a boat up the ramp by hand, and mine is a very light vessel, a little heavier now with its wooden mast, gaff and boom. We discussed getting the boat license for those who didn't yet have it – coastal and then offshore. It's essential for each of us to have the capability of going on a rescue mission with the club's Zodiac. Of course, some rescues have to be left to the professionals, but I'd be willing to risk my neck to save a life – within reason. I have already done so! The expression – Worse things happen at sea! – is so true... Also, some of us would like to graduate from dinghies and really go to sea! These are good folk. "Paul on the Island of Malta I think Acts Of acts of the apostles Saint Paul Reached. After we had reached safety, we then learned that the island was called Malta. The natives showed us unusual kindness. Since it had begun to rain and was cold, they kindled a fire and welcomed all of us around it. Paul had gathered a bundle of brushwood and was putting it on the fire, when a viper, driven out by the heat, fastened itself on his hand. When the natives saw the creature hanging from his hand, they said to one another, 'This man must be a murderer; though he has escaped from the sea, justice has not allowed him to live.' He, however, shook off the creature into the fire and suffered no harm. They were expecting him to swell up or drop dead, but after they had waited a long time and saw that nothing unusual had happened to him, they changed their minds and began to say that he was a god."

"Thank you for always, without fail, possessing the intentions to blatantly disrespect me and our other neighbors around us. It is such a pleasntry to listen to your illiterate and distasteful music, with bass that shakes my ancestors from their graves. This is especially joyous when I have to wake up at 4:30 in the morning for work, such as a day like tomorrow, or when I have one of my excruciatingly painful chronic migraines. It would be silly not to mention the fact that the other inhabitants around us have young children that need to go to sleep early and can't because anytime someone enters or leaves your household, you slam your door so hard it's stronger than San Francisco's tragic earthquake of 1906. Being an early morning riser used to be great until now, because I have to spend extra time making up for lost hours of sleep due the wonderful hospitality you don't extend to my family and our other neighbors. On a more serious note it is ignorant for me to mention this, but maybe one day you'll learn to earn the respect of your fellow living inhabitants if you continue to be obnoxiously loud at ungodly hours and invite hooligans to help you do so. Take my advice with caution though, I wouldn't want to set you up for failure with your future neighbors since you are doing such a good job now. I wouldn't dream of turning you down if you ever needed an egg or a cup of flour because how high you don't sit on my pedestal of people that I respect."

"Do you remember, as I do, how in the classroom poems were so often taught as if they were riddles? What is the poet really trying to say here? What is the theme or message of this poem? What does this word 'purple' or 'flower' or 'grass' really mean? Like classical music, poetry has an unfortunate reputation for requiring special training and education to appreciate, which takes readers away from its true strangeness, and makes most of us feel as if we haven't studied enough to read it."

"Dear artist, Every one of us has some kind of liking /disliking for certain things in life. Similarly I think you love drawing because drawing do not cost much and is always fun. You just have to make a unique piece. So get your pencil and start drawing. It is a way to show creativity. It needs lot of devotion and practice. So get your paint brush and pencil and start drawing. Drawing is the perfect way to make things look alive."

"This illustration uses Gestural Drawing Style. Gestural Drawing Style is a kind of illustration where the illustrator creates something quickly to to give an impression of something. The artist has created this illustration of a woman playing a musical instrument. It is a loose and quickly made illustration that uses human figure, tree and musical instrument. It is not clean, yet gives an impression of the pose. Since it uses gestures (a woman playing instrument), it is a gestural drawing."

You name it, there's probably a digital market for it. And while digital is awesome in many ways, it definitely isn't perfect. On the one hand, digital media has made it far easier for independent artists and creators to break into their respective markets. Indie games through Steam, indie music through Soundcloud, indie eBooks through Amazon, etc. As an aspiring indie myself, this is a trend I can get behind 100 percent. Plus, digital media is generally more convenient. Nobody can argue with that. But is that reason enough to jump ship and abandon everything? Maybe, maybe not. Let's take a quick look at the pros and cons. You might find that it's actually better to wait."*

"Writing a Letter to Your Parents,
 Dear Sir/mam, I know you probably are surprised to find this letter because I usually don't do stuff like this, but I wanted you to know something and thought this may be a good way to talk with you. I wanted to sit down and just talk with you but that is really hard for me because I am shy and a little embarrassed. I also am just not good at talking sometimes, so that is why I am writing you. I don't want to keep anything from you because you have always been such an awesome mom. I hope you can help me out like you have so many times before. I am writing because I have been really sad lately. Really down and out. My classes are harder than ever and dad is probably going to freak out when he sees my report card this semester. I feel like I always let him down, especially because I get such lower scores in school than both sisters. I do try hard; it just doesn't come as easily to me. I also have been getting made fun of at school a lot. This kid, Chris, is always book-checking me and slamming me into lockers. It's getting old. I also asked this girl I liked to the dance and she turned me down. I just feel worthless... I need help. I don't know what kind of help I need or what needs to happen, but I feel like my whole world is falling around me. I'm tired all the time, but I can't seem to sleep. I tried to talk to a couple of my friends about what was going on, and they were nice, but they didn't really understand. I even thought about going to the counsellor at school, but she doesn't seem like she would care I don't want things to keep going on like this, but I don't know what to do."

"Hey, my man, do you think this is the worst train of the day? I was just thinking, because everyone here looks like they're going to the death row, everyone must hate this train. But then, I thought with myself: We should all be laughing and yelling of joy. You will ask me, but why? Why we should be joyful of being in the worst train of the day? The answer is fast and simple: There's 7 billion people in the world, and probably half of those are in a situation that if you changed places with them, you would lay in the ground and start crying right at the exact moment. But you're in a giant vehicle with enough time to actually think. Be joyful."

"MY goal is to access my mind and pictorial it as archive to increase my drawing ability, let my mind learn to express itself on paper with images freely. Our mind is a vast storehouse of visual information. Use imagination to draw the image that my mind presented. Draw my ideas instead of put it in words. Turn off my inner critic during the process. Draw a sketch of the finished result. That makes me start and finish a successful task."

"Writing a Letter to Your Parents,

Dear Sir/mam, I know you probably are surprised to find this letter because I usually don't do stuff like this, but I wanted you to know something and thought this may be a good way to talk with you. I wanted to sit down and just talk with you but that is really hard for me because I am shy and a little embarrassed. I also am just not good at talking sometimes, so that is why I am writing you. I don't want to keep anything from you because you have always been such an awesome mom. I hope you can help me out like you have so many times before. I am writing because I have been really sad lately. Really down and out. My classes are harder than ever and dad is probably going to freak out when he sees my report card this semester. I feel like I always let him down, especially because I get such lower scores in school than both sisters. I do try hard; it just doesn't come as easily to me. I also have been getting made fun of at school a lot. This kid, Chris, is always book-checking me and slamming me into lockers. It's getting old. I also asked this girl I liked to the dance and she turned me down. I just feel worthless... I need help. I don't know what kind of help I need or what needs to happen, but I feel like my whole world is falling around me. I'm tired all the time, but I can't seem to sleep. I tried to talk to a couple of my friends about what was going on, and they were nice, but they didn't really understand. I even thought about going to the counsellor at school, but she doesn't seem like she would care I don't want things to keep going on like this, but I don't know what to do."

"At The New Theological Movement, we try to post two to three articles per week (sometimes more, sometimes less). Generally these posts are related to something from the Church's liturgical calendar – e. g. a saint's feast day or a particular feast of our Lord or our Lady – but occasionally we post on matters related more directly to the modern world. Our primary goal is to spread the faith effectively and to promote a true "hermeneutic of continuity" in liturgy, theology, and spirituality. Thus, as Father Martin put it so well, "Our aim at the New Theological Movement is twofold: (1) To write faithful Catholic theology, in communion with the Church's entire 2,000 year Tradition, through the medium of the internet. (2) To create a platform upon which a theological discussion can be carried out in charity and in truth." (from the "about" page) In the hope of accomplishing this second aim – creating a place for theological discussion – we have decided to create an "Ask Reginaldus" page, which has now become an "Ask Father Ryan" page. If you have any topics you would like to see covered in an article, you can now ask Father Ryan Erlenbush to do so. Moreover, even if you have just a simple question, feel free to ask Father Erlenbush for a brief reply."

"Man, in order to get something big these days, in order to attract many people to your cause, you seriously have to learn to speak not in the language of brutish populist, half-extremist slogans, but in the language of universal conditions, the language of human rights. Remind the people who feel oppressed by their government that they are entitled to freedom, that it is their birthright. That they are entitled to social progress, equal rights, to basic human dignity - and they will follow you."

"Sound occurs when the complex system inside our ears picks up vibrations in the air, which our brains interpret as the birds chirping, clacking keys on a computer and roaring traffic. Our days are permeated with sound - it's inescapable. But when sound becomes bothersome, we call it noise. When noise in a particular area is constant and damaging, we refer to it as noise pollution. Construction and traffic can contribute to noise pollution. If you're passing through an area with a good deal of noise pollution, such as a construction site, you might not mind this noise since it is a temporary disturbance that isn't likely to cause hearing loss, stress or other health issues. But if your home - which should be a bastion of peace, quiet and calm - is in an area with frequent or pervasive noise pollution, this could be dangerous to your health. Conditions brought on by noise pollution include insomnia, hearing loss and heart health issues. You can suffer noise-induced hearing loss by being exposed to noise above 85 decibels for a prolonged period of time. Additionally, noise between 120 and 140 decibels can actually cause the ear to feel pain."

"ED: How has he alienated them?"

DA: I'd say he—more successfully than most—created his own mini-Devendra universe. He's got all the recurring characters and his own language and everyone dresses in the same crazy way and sings in crazy voices. And I think that it's part of the typical life cycle of any artist that's too interesting to stay in the first world they create. He created this "place" where a certain subset of people felt really comfortable and then he was like, Eh... fuck that place. So the people who saw him as this messiah who delivered them to this fairy world got left behind because he couldn't take it seriously anymore. I find his new recordings so much more exciting to listen to. I can't really think of any context in 2008 when I would want to listen to Oh Me Oh My... Agreed. Mostly, I loved that stuff when it first surfaced. I was pretty blown away by it. And honestly, there are still a few songs that I'll play through if they come up in a shuffle, but I can't imagine sitting through the whole thing and paying attention. But at the same time, I still haven't really cracked that Megapuss record. You should. It's really zany. Zany in a good way! I think it's zany in a good way. It's definitely him indulging himself in a way people may not be interested in, but I think it gives a taste of his sense of humor. I think the obvious reference point is Frank Zappa, except basically no interest in virtuosic playing. But do you like it out of context? Because I'm way into it as a fuck you. I'm behind him one hundred percent on that. I love the sentiment, but I haven't been able to get into it as music. Or do you not even see it as a fuck you? I've never been a big Zappa guy, so I don't have much of that to use for contrast. I'm stuck with this crumbly Bob Dylan filter that is definitely misapplied. I think it would be more of a fuck you if he released it as Devendra Banhart album. But he called it Megapuss and put a picture of him and another dude naked with a knife on the cover. I appreciate that he's like, We're having a ball and following our own weird impulses and if you want to take a peek into our world that's great but you don't have to get involved. Have you seen Megapuss live? I haven't. How were they at Festival in the Forest in Big Sur? Interesting... Devendra didn't really come off as a leading man. Greg Rogove and Fab Moretti majorly overshadowed him, and he seemed pretty bummed in general throughout the weekend. Maybe that's too much to assume, but he seemed to be pretty disengaged.

Most importantly, thank you for loving me for me and for never giving up on me. I guess many say that I am one lucky girl because I am on a personal level with the one I call m. "Idol". Most of you have the celebrity idols such as Johnny Depp, Kim K, Justin Beiber, Sarah Jessica Parker, etc, but I idolize a friend that I made back in 2008; just because I am friends with her doesn't make her any different than the typical celebrity idol. Actually, my idol is in a Catholic band called Full Armor Band (check them out!), so in all technicality, my idol isn't too far off. What makes being friends with your idol so much better is that not only could I look up to her whenever it's needed but, I could call her and talk to her when things get rough and ask her for advice! How cool would that be if you could call your celebrity idol? I mean, it's worth a shot...you can always send fan mail and hope for the best! I can send fan mail to my idol as well."

MADAME RANEVSKY: Please don't go; I want you. At any rate it's gayer when you're here. [A pause] I keep expecting something to happen, as if the house were going to tumble down about our ears. We have been very, very sinful! Oh, the sins that I have committed... I've always squandered money at random like a madwoman; I married a man who made nothing but debts. My husband drank himself to death on champagne; he was a fearful drinker. Then for my sins I fell in love and went off with another man; and immediately—that was my first punishment—a blow full on the head... here, in this very river... my little boy was drowned; and I went abroad, right, right away, never to come back any more, never to see this river again... I shut my eyes and ran, like a mad thing, and he came after me, pitiless and cruel. I bought a villa at Mentone, because he fell ill there, and for three years I knew no rest day or night; the sick man tormented and wore down my soul. Then, last year, when my villa was sold to pay my debts, I went off to Paris, and he came and robbed me of everything, left me and took up with another woman, and I tried to poison myself.... It was all so stupid, so humiliating.... Then suddenly I longed to be back in Russia, in my own country, with my little girl..."

"The artist thinking is about the bad sign of every moment. In this picture the man thinking about his past life what he did and how is going now. He standing under a tree and seeing the water and thinking about it."

"To do this, I used a new technique I learned called triangulation. To triangulate a new point, I first sight (try to visualize) the angles to this new point from two existing points. Then, I draw lines from the existing points in the direction of the new point based on the sighted angles. Finally, I mark the new point where the lines intersect. With these four outer points drawn, the next step is to draw in the shape of the head. To do this, I continued to triangulate more points, and draw in the necessary curves to connect them. I drew in the vertical center line, which will help me laterally place the features."

"Henry Morris, author of 'The Biblical Basis for Modern Science' (Baker House, 1984), a creationist text, states that: The ark was to be essentially a huge box designed essentially for stability in the waters of the Flood rather than for movement through the waters.... The ark was taller than a normal three-story building and about one and a half times as long as a football field. The total volumetric capacity was equal to 1,396,000 cubic feet [39,500 cubic meters]... equivalent to 522 standard railroad stock cars, far more than enough space to carry two of every known kind of animal, living or extinct. The flaws in Morris's calculations become evident when you consider that, according to many creationists, Noah's Ark included hundreds of dinosaurs. That would mean, for example, the brachiosaurus (two of them, of course), each of which weighed about 50 tons and reached 85 feet (26 meters) long. Even if two representatives all of Earth's animals could somehow fit on the ark, enough space would be needed for drinking water and food for an entire year."

"I'm Jinu, 20 years old, married and settled in Idukki, graduated from MGU and currently studying in Real Accounting. I've just started earning money online. I would like to choose to pursue a career as writer or journalist where my greatest interest vested in. I'm born with a feeling that I'm experiencing everything for the first time. So I never fed up with anything. I always prefer to have an organized life, and even when I let go to chaos, my goals and dreams still have strictly defined borders in my mind. Constantly worried that I missed a detail that will be impossible to fix, I may get stuck in details, becoming overly critical and concerned about matters that nobody else seems to care much about. It sounds like the most bad in me is that, anything less than perfect is not good enough for me. So sometimes people around me disappoints me much even when they are true in their position. That's me."

"As I am a Hindu, this picture reminds me of a meaningful verse that is: 'om pur-namidaha purnamidam...' Its meaning is you who is created from infinity is infinity and will become infinity at the end. From this picture the morale that we can find is to know that infinity that make you thing, make you imagine and make you hold your world inside brain is always resides in you. Search not outside, don't be distracted from actions that eyes see, but feel in your body when you see, when you act in a situation and find you within you, 'the infinity'..."

"As soon as I played the message, I thought it must be a pocket dial since there was only a voice making strange noises. However, the more I listened, the less likely this seems. The voice repeats a string of similar syllables over and over with varying tone and inflection. So now I've moved on to the idea that someone's just having a bit of fun. The really weird bit - and the part that got me thinking - starts about 1:10 in to the message when a mechanical click noise is heard. Then, a recorded voice comes in wit. 'If you're satisfied with your message' followed by a beep and 'message review'. Ok, so the standard end-of-message spiel from the phone company. But when the message review starts, it is clearly different from the first string of incoherent gibberish. After this second string of rambling, the operator voice pops back in wit. 'If you're satisfied with your message' while the person continues with his nonsense overlapping the message."

"Dear I am writing this letter to let you know about the inconvenience I am facing due to your habit of playing loud music till late night. I understand your concern that you like to listen loud music to release stress after hectic working day. However, at the same time, your likings should not affect your neighbours. The volume of your music system is rising by every passing day and causing unnecessary trouble to my family. Moreover, we are unable to get proper sleep and due to lack of sleep I am not able to concentrate on my work. I have been facing this problem for more then six months now. Although, I have never objected this issue before, but now it's beyond my limit and I am very uncomfortable if this continues. Therefore, before making a complaint to society manager, I thought to have discussion with you. Thus, I am requesting you to keep the volume of music low, so it would be audible to you only or put headphones while listening it. I hope my suggestions would be helpful to you and I expect to have a positive change in the future. I look forward for your cooperation. Yours faithfull."

I have been working hard and due to lack of sleep I am not able to concentrate on my work. I have been working for more than six months now. Although I have never objected to the noise, but now it's beyond my limit and I am very uncomfortable if the situation continues. Therefore, I thought to have a conversation with you. I am requesting you to keep the volume of music low so it would be suitable to you and my neighbors while listening to it. I hope my suggestion would be helpful to you and I expect to have a positive change in the future. I look forward for your cooperation. Yours faithfully,

"This cartoon is about two men and a cocktail bar in a desert. There are two desert in this picture one has men and other has bar. But the is surrounded by sharks these two men are trying to get there. They look shabby they must be waiting for many days. They must be hungry. They have drinks in front of them but too they can't drink it. They are so unlucky. But drinking is not good for health. If they try to go to that place surely sharks will eat them. So it better to on their desert and wait for help. In any condition we should drink. it is what he is expressing."

We can able to communicate with them directly and understand them quickly. or else do they only wanna appear special appearance as Gods only once. Why you are doing that? Scientists say, Even they do not send any response to us even if we send any message icon to them. People believe that, Ancient constructions Like Pyramids in Egypt are done with the highly advanced technologies, that is mostly possible with the help of Aliens itself. Egypt Pyramids has this arts on its walls: China Archaeologists has found a statue of a tiny alien with the space suit and bulging eyes. I believed that you do visit our earth and see you bless people with their powers and do some related good stuffs. As far as their physical appearance is concerned you somewhat looks like our own gods. Some have multiple heads/hands/etc, while some have good/bed powers. please solve these mysteries"

"The morale I could get from this cartoon is that, even though we all say whatever our circumstance is we all stay calm without being nervous, it is not always possible to stay like that. So when the situation goes much worse it is good to be a little nervous. Here in the first background it is seen that he is on a much calmer state because there is nothing to worry about. But in the second picture his hand posture a little bit changed downwards. It seems he is a little bit nervous. In the last background he seems more nervous because the water level increases on a danger level. From this cartoon the morale I got is even we say we will stay calm in all situations, it is not always possible and a little bit of nervousness is okay and good."

They come in every color, pure or mixed gray-green of basalt, blood-soaked jasper, quartz, granite and feldspar, even bits of glass, smoothed by the patient jeweller of the tides. Volcano-born, earthquake-quarried, shaven by glaciers, wind-carved, heat-cracked, stratified, speckled, bright in the wet surf, no two alike, all torn from the dry land tossed up in millions on this empty shore. "Of course, I get stressed out. If anyone says they don't get stressed out they're lying. But one thing that mitigates that is taking time each morning to declare and focus on the fact that 'I have enough.' I have enough. I don't need to worry about responding to every email each day. If they get mad that's their problem. It's easy to talk about how hard our lives are. It's easy to talk about how unfair life is. And that we got the short-end of the stick. But does this kind of talking really help anyone? When we judge our situation as worse than someone else's, we are ignorantly and incorrectly saying, 'You've got it easy. You're not like me. Success should come easy to you because you haven't had to deal with what I've gone through.' This paradigm has formally become known as the victim mentality, and it generally leads to feelings of entitlement. The world owes you nothing. Life isn't meant to be fair. However, the world has also given you everything you need. The truth is, you have every."

No, McDonald's isn't the healthiest thing around but I always laugh when people think they're so enlightened and say 'Gross! McDonald's is so unhealthy! I eat this instead' and this really isn't any healthier than McDonald's at all. When I first switched to eating a healthier, plant-based diet I continued to eat fish. "The morale is perhaps that people seldom change. They retain most of their traits for the entirety of their lives."

From the late antique period, the story of the blind men and an elephant is a well-known parable. In this version, the story is set on a small island in the ocean. A group of people, each touching a different part of an elephant, make conclusions about the whole animal based on their limited perspective. One person touches the leg and says it's a pillar, another touches the ear and says it's a fan, another touches the tail and says it's a rope, and so on. The parable illustrates the limitations of human perception and the danger of drawing conclusions from incomplete information. In the context of the book, it suggests that people's traits and behaviors are shaped by their environment and experiences, but they often fail to see the bigger picture or to change when they have the opportunity to do so.

"From the late antique & medieval Roman tradition, three stand out - not merely on account of their gender, but their character and scholarship as well. Saint Eudocia the Queen (AD 401-60, Aelia Eudocia Augusta, born Athenais) straddles the worlds of pagan philosophy and Christian theology; daughter to Leontius, a rhetorician teaching at Plato's still-operative Academy of Athens, she received a broad education in the grand old fashion, apparently learning both Homer and Pindar by heart. The story goes that, though she was her father's favourite and alone ministered to him in his declining years, he denied her a share in the inheritance, because 'her mind and her destiny would be inheritance enough' next to that of her boorish brothers. Going to Constantinople to make an appeal for the Emperor's personal intervention in her inheritance, she instead found her equal in age, Theodosius II (r. 402-50) to be an eligible bachelor of twenty years; and married him at the recommendation of his sister, the later co-Empress Pulcheria (she wrote her brother, '[I have] found a young girl, a Greek maid, very beautiful, pure and dainty, eloquent as well, the daughter of a philosopher'). She supposedly amply rewarded her brothers with salaries and offices for indirectly leading her to this good fortune. Her stint on the throne was less than idyllic; during the 20 years she effectively held the office she came into conflict with other factions seeking to control the Emperor, chiefly his sister Pulcheria (who installed herself as a co-regnant Empress, equal to her brother, a position Eudocia never held) — and their relationship deteriorated as a result."

"Oh you don't understand? Let me explain it again the same way."

"Water is a transparent and nearly colorless chemical substance that is the main constituent of Earth's streams, lakes, and oceans, and the fluids of most living organisms. Its chemical formula is  $H_2O$ , meaning that each of its molecules contains one oxygen and two hydrogen atoms that are connected by covalent bonds. Strictly speaking, water refers to the liquid state of a substance that prevails at standard ambient temperature and pressure; but it often refers also to its solid state (ice) or its gaseous state (steam or water vapor). It also occurs in nature as snow, glaciers, ice packs and icebergs, clouds, fog, dew, aquifers, and atmospheric humidity."

"Donald trump and Kim Jong-Un decided to visit north korea's beach in a ship. After that ship slowed in the middle of sea kim jong-un pushed him nnto the sea then he go back. Donald suddenly called Putin on his phone. He reach there with a nuclear bomb. The owner of the beach is Kim Jong-Un. And he is getting income by selling fish. So he decided to destroy the sea and he said let us covfefe ("It's time to nuke this place down." "What's the code? "covfefe.""). To destroy fishes and decrease the income of Kim Jong-Un."

"The match between Argentina and France was the best game in this world cup so far. Argentina fought very well against France but unfortunately lost in the game and knocked out from the tournament. After the first goal from France and Argentina scored 2 beautiful goals and comes to lead. France players are young and their pace is too high. So they scored 2 more goals. Still Argentina Fought and scored 3rd goal. Argentina defenders were not that fast to catch the the France player especially MBappe. That's the only reason of Argentina's defeat."

"Actually you are a good artist, this drawing has good things such as you the sun so you tell us that it's a day not night. Also the tree is very well painted I have no comment on it and on the girl drawing but my comment is taht you try to use colors to make it better and attractive. Also I think that the thing around it is a sea, you should explain that by painting some fishes. You painted some birds this is a good notice I give it always so chapeau. You can remove the first cloud above the tree, it makes photo very bad on my opinion also try to show us why she is happy."

"The most important thing for you to do at first is to remain calm and try to think clearly. If you start to panic, you can lose control and end up forfeiting your chances of survival. You won't do that well if you've driven yourself crazy. William Golding's novel 'Pincher Martin' is a great example that illustrates how you can't do anything unless you 'take control', because the main character in the story lets panic get the better of him. Try making 'buddy' out of an object or animal near you, and talk to them to calm down. You should make 'safety, water, shelter and food' your main priorities. Almost all people who are lost out at sea are found in a matter of hours or days. Science tells us that the human body can survive up to 2 weeks without food, but just 3-4 days without water. So if there is no natural source of fresh water, start looking for a way to collect rainwater. Any source of water is great! As long as you have found a source of water, you can try to purify or desalinate it later. If fresh water is available, try boil it for 2-3 minutes. This will purify it. If you have a desalination device, that's even better! If not, don't fret, there are actually several methods by which you can desalinate water. One such method is distillation. To distillate water, construct a solar still, or one that works over a fire. A solar still can be built by filling a large, flat container with salt water or even urine which can be re-used, if the need arises.

"Aliexpress is something like an escape to me. From my boring life it brings some joy by shopping or at least by surfing about new things and things I need and I don't. It is just a good life in real to shopping."

"...But men can fake a whole relationship." The artist's style is simple with clean lines and black ink. The scene appears to have a hidden meaning. How the man is looking down and his eyes are not showing gives a feeling of a mysterious meaning behind the scene. I loved how he combined the sea and palm tree scene in the background.

"At first he guessed it is was his sister."

"The artist used the simple yet deep type of drawing. Although the drawing style is simple with obvious bold black lines, the photo appears to have a hidden meaning. I was so humiliated, I could have died! I thought we were supposed to be going out...isn't that what you told me Monday? What ever happened to 'Tina, you're different from other girls', or 'I feel like I can tell you anything' or 'I knew you were special the first time I saw you'? Were you just playing me? What do you want from me? No! You know what? I don't even care...this whole thing was just a pathetic lie to satisfy your ego, wasn't it?...I mean you didn't even have the decency to break it off before you jumped into something else. I can't believe I fell for the whole honesty routine...Just leave, I can't even look at you, you make me sick, Please, just leave! OK... I admit it, you got me, so take your little trophy, add me to your collection and get out of my life."

"Dear Paul, I was interested in your art. It is very original remarked that an attempt to interest society is indifferent to any problem like a lonely sitting on a palm tree. In my country, this problem is very urgent and it affects corruption in the higher echelons of power. One person continuously reveals all sorts of secret schemes and shows it to society that is indifferent. But this will be perceived not indifferently only among the opposition. I liked your drawing style and you have a subtle sense of humor. In my country this art can become quite sensational and be placed on the front pages of sharp opposition magazines. Also his sharp discussion by political bloggers will be quite expected."

Have you ever seen a guy peeing by sitiing on the toilt just to feel how a women feels? Well, you have enough reasons now. Enjoy."

"The artist here is portraying more of human values in this cartoon. The man is standing right there to ask for help but a painter is busy in finding proper location for his painting. Instead of helping the needy the artist want to satisfy his needs. The paints are historical and cultural, the situation makes it more witty."

"I see a picture that perhaps characterizes our modern times quite well. It's unfriendly, it's cold, and it's strict. The drawing style is pretty linear and minimalist, as is the message the picture conveys: '404 - Not Found. The page you are trying to access does not exist. If this error persists, please contact the website webmaster'. It is perhaps a metaphor, symbolizing the fact that we all become lost at some point in our lives, and at that time it seems to us that we'll never find what we seek. Will we, in the end? Who knows. Another, perhaps even deeper question can be easily missed: Who is the Master of the web in which we're all entangled?"

"The drawing shows a man and woman on the beach, looks like they are going to have some foods, but there is no food. The drawing could be more pleasing asthetically if somethings are changed. The obvious mistake in the drawing is the broken coconut tree. I will fix the tree. The man has a knife and fork. I will set a dinning table with foods on it. I will also change the expression in the girl's face. She looks terrified. I will make her smiling."

"Still its confused me and both in the picture. Yes, the rider is an anxiety because they are in desert island. But the horse is little bit angry. From his side the rider force him to forward. The rider is out of mind, he has no idea, how they reached there. The funny thing is the palm tree not had any fruits. what a height of that horse. I think he is pegasus."

"The desert-island cartoon genre started in the 30's, when shipwrecks were actually quite common. There's a big Robinson Crusoe's element on it, and it's been an evergreen cartoon for all captionists around the world. It's basically free comedy. This never dying cartoon has over one hundred years and will probably keep on going. This is probably another reason to caption those, just like in the linked cartoon in this job, it's fun to combine our modern elements with the fact that this is a old cartoon."

"Writing a Letter to Your Parents,

Dear Sir/mam, I know you probably are surprised to find this letter because I usually don't do stuff like this, but I wanted you to know something and thought this may be a good way to talk with you. I wanted to sit down and just talk with you but that is really hard for me because I am shy and a little embarrassed. I also am just not good at talking sometimes, so that is why I am writing you. I don't want to keep anything from you because you have always been such an awesome mom. I hope you can help me out like you have so many times before. I am writing because I have been really sad lately. Really down and out. My classes are harder than ever and dad is probably going to freak out when he sees my report card this semester. I feel like I always let him down, especially because I get such lower scores in school than both sisters. I do try hard; it just doesn't come as easily to me. I also have been getting made fun of at school a lot. This kid, Chris, is always book-checking me and slamming me into lockers. It's getting old. I also asked this girl I liked to the dance and she turned me down. I just feel worthless... I need help. I don't know what kind of help I need or what needs to happen, but I feel like my whole world is falling around me. I'm tired all the time, but I can't seem to sleep. I tried to talk to a couple of my friends about what was going on, and they were nice, but they didn't really understand. I even thought about going to the counsellor at school, but she doesn't seem like she would care I don't want things to keep going on like this, but I don't know what to do."

"Dear Arthur, As the Editor in Chief of the publication, I want to let you know about the drawing you send to me. "To make this drawing successful, the speech bubble should be filled with an everyday issue that would be ironic for someone on an island to consider. It is a cartoon illustration of a person with a large, curly afro standing on a small island next to a palm tree. The person is looking up at the tree, which has a face and a small hut on its trunk. The background is a simple horizon line.

"This cartoon is depicted to tell people of being aware of their own habits, otherwise the habit may cause serious problem to their future in life. This happened in my life also. At the age of 20 I developed a habit of reading and watching fictional novels, chinese web novels and loved to be in those imagined world all the day. As a result I became more and more out of touch with my friends, family and world. Now in my social life I have only few friends. "Platonic Island is a story of the bold and daring attempt of the idealistic efforts of kidnapped and abandoned young adults that are isolated upon a small uncharted island in Oceania who decided that they would create among themselves a community completely liberated from traditional social prohibitions. From the initial two survivors, Jason who was twenty-three and Jocelyn who was sixteen, came a small group that fought for their ideal world: a new value system and a break away from customary religious and social barriers in their quest to establish a dream community. Their very survival was challenged, by the elements and animal life, by pirates and other adventurers, and by natural physical needs. They fought to save their family and remain apart from the very outside world that had brutalized them in the first place, even if it meant the death of all of them."

"The most careless girl in the class had the most exquisite body, the constant proximity of which exhausted us, not least because her awkwardness, so unlike ours, manifested itself as a license to kick off all consciousness of her limbs like a branch one smacks out of one's face in the woods in an act of defiance, almost contempt, whose ironic outcome was the deepest inhabitation of flesh I have ever seen. It was through her body that I wanted to pass close to the bodies of the boys. She would take me home with her and all but throw me into the dark dynamics of her empty-seeming household, which I felt to be hung with heavily stitched draperies that concealed not only the rooms but the beings inside. She took me there and spun me into her weird intimacy in which my own self-consciousness was a pestering insect, stupid, negligible. She would speak to people, to men, to anyone in the streets and walk just as quickly off, implicating me in the desire she aroused, her uncontainability streaking through me a blazing trail of lights from high in the whitest part of my head down into my lungs, my entrails, the part of me that wasn't breathing."

"Once upon a time there was three little fish. They were living a perfect life deep under the sea. Every day they would swim to the top of the water just to see the lovely view of the boats sailing back to land. One sunny day when the fish were swimming up to their usual place the saw something very strange, a shadow was moving towards them on the surface of the water. At first the fish started to panic and swam as quick as possible behind a rock. Slowly very slowly the fish came out from behind the rock and their tiny jaws dropped. The shadow object seemed to be a ship, a massive ship with a pointy bottom and rusted edges. The ship slowed down until it stopped right above the fishes. The fishes froze. Suddenly they heard a shout from the ship from up above. An anchor was being dropped into the ocean right on top of the fishes. The fishes swam for their life but they were too slow the anchor hit them and flattened the three little fish."

"It was a hot summer afternoon, I was taking a nap when I dreamed of it. In my dream, the room that I was sleeping in, turned into a time machine and there was a lever with the calibration of time. You can be in any requested time period for at max a day but there were two conditions: Once you enter a time period you do not have to interact with anyone. You can be there and see things happening but can't disturb things or try to change it. If you hamper anything you'll be taken back to present time immediately. I knew exactly which time I wanted to be in. I have always wanted to see how I was as a child. Also, I miss the lost summer vacations a lot. So I decided to go back to that time when I was in class 7th and enjoying my summer vacations. I pressed the lever and as I was taking the lever to the said period the whole room started shaking and turning upside down. Something went wrong, I was really scared. Suddenly everything calmed down and I came out of the room. It was a quite summer noon. I was still wondering if the thing worked or not. I rushed to see the calendar and found that I was exactly a year back."

"If I was an artist I would certainly draw something else that represents hope. Because hope is really important for the audience. Nobody likes an artist that draws a black future. It's always good to present or give a way out. So it would be cool to draw something like a really far ship behind the two guys. Which could mean that all they have to do is be patient. :D"

- Hey Jose can we discuss about chloroform? The chemical name of chloroform is trichloromethane. The specialty of chloroform is colorless, sweet smelling, dense liquid that is produced on a large scale as a precursor to PTFE. Sir James Young Simpson invented it and its uses are to knock out people, used as a anaesthetic, used in pesticide formulations used as a solvent, production of hydrochlorofluorocarbon. It can be prepared in laboratory by reaction of bleaching powder with ethanol or acetone. In this reaction, bleaching powder acts as oxidising chlorinating and hydrolyzing agent. Its chemical formula is  $\text{CaOCl}_2 + \text{H}_2\text{O} \rightarrow \text{Ca(OH)}_2 + \text{Cl}_2$   $\text{CaOCl}_2 + \text{H}_2\text{O} \rightarrow \text{Ca(OH)}_2 + \text{Cl}_2 + \text{CaOCl}_2$ .

"A man who looks exactly like this might be behind the theft of $70,000 worth of gold bullion from her home. The gold was primarily in the form of a one-kilogram bar (such as you may have seen in the movies) and 15 smaller pieces. In addition to the gold, some cash, an iPad and a laptop were also stolen. <http://pezn.tv/2o4cxma>"

"Hey Tom, have you noticed Julie - our new receptionist?"

"The picture shows the innocence and ignorance of a person when they betrayed by someone. In this picture, the artist explains a person is seriously immense in the beauty of nature with his thoughts. But, he even doesn't know he is going to betrayed by someone he doesn't know. Eventually I got the point from this picture: The world is full of evil and betrayals."

"Dear only man around me, I wish that bitch next to you die soon from dehydration! So that we can share time on my two trees island."

"Hello friends. I am Pipi, 27 years old from a small city called cuttack of India, situated at the southern part of Asia. I love to watch and play cricket as it is the most popular game of my country. Then I like to read fictional and fantasy novels, specially Chinese web novels from wuxiaworld. And the thing with which I am most comfortable is to read philosophical books, mostly spiritual, you can say it is one of my hobbies to read these kind of books. Well that's all from my part."

"The artist is genius. He has shown how the musician makes a harp from the coconut trees and is playing it on an island. The musician must know carpentry as well."

"When I meet with Alien, I will feel proud and lucky. In that moment I will tell Alien give me a huge body power mind power and my physical strength should be unlimited because of my is not satisfied in night recent time. So this kind of things I will tell and my will be satisfied."

"It might be some natural disaster anywhere. Two people just save them on a island or some dry place around of water. and they got a relief that is quite low quantity for two of them, and they might be discussing about how to utilize this relief between them."

"Dear Ms. Jung, you have the raw talent to become the next big thing but you need to focus and put everything you can into your art. The lines can be made more clearly and your characters should be well defined specially the woman her face is not well defined so focus in conveying your characters emotion with your pencil."

"If I was an artist working on this, I'd make few changes like: Make some cumulonimbus clouds with a far off tornado going on. Make the guy using the overhead leaf as umbrella with some shivers going on. Standing guy. The sinking boat to be a little bigger and with a name written on its sides and no anchor sign. People rowing away from the sinking boat. Colour. Something to mark the far off horizon. Small island or islands with maybe wind swept palm or any other tropical trees. Turtles."

"Sure, the picture stems from artist depth, but it needs some clarity because there is nothing new in the picture. The picture needs something unusual because it is possible to see such a thing actually on any island or beach. Two men sit talking after eating fish. It is possible that a man is sitting eating and the other man is drowning in the sea And accuracy needs some thing. There will be a message inside the artwork."

"Five minutes is not a lot of time to go anywhere. If one attempts to flee in a car there is the danger of getting caught in the open on a congested road and headed in the wrong direction. Besides an EMP discharge will probably kill the engine depending on the proximity of the strike. If one's state is large then the odds of being close to the blast shrink, but there is no way of telling where the nuke will impact. Unless you live near a military target, the secondary sites are population and industrial centers."

"The only thing better than the kiss is the moment right before when he looks into your eyes and leaves you breathless."

"I alone cannot change the world but I can cast the stone across the water to create many ripples."

"Dear artist, We liked your drawing style very much and see great potential in your art, so we encourage you to send us more of your fine ideas because this kind of humor is what we are looking for. Please think about our offer and send us more of drawing like this one because this kind of funny art expression is what we need to publish... Sincerely,
Mr. Woods. 'Escape to humor' Magazine."

- Hey did you ask yet.
- No my mom's in a bad mood.

"Dear comic artist, I know the arts world it's not always easy and sometimes seems unfair when our talent is not recognized. But I must say: don't give up! You have a unique line and the creativity you have is something we don't see every day. You must never give up because I'm sure one day you'll ear your name around the country. And then, when your work changes lives you'll see that all the hard work was not in vain."

"The artist can add a shark fin in the water to make it seem like the people are really stranded. Use a caption like, 'And I just had to marry into this, I thought you said your parents were rich' This changes the perspective of the picture to suit a more mature audience while endearing to the teenagers. Remove the coconuts from the tree, let them have nothing completely."

"Le pondria que salga de la caja una tela y se usaria a modo de velero, usando el tronco de la palmera que esta en la isla. Tambien podiese ser que salga de la caja unas herramientas para cortar y hacer una balsa con el tronco de la palmera y usando tambien la tela. Que la caja contenga un motor y lo ponga en la balsa construida con la palmera y la tela."

"Always rich people rules the poor."

"If I was an artist then I made the lighting sun in the sky. The wave of water is unavailable that make the incomplete to the picture. Artist should be make a big ship that is shinking in the water in the sea storm. Ship appear very small for 9-10 people but the number of people is more than it that are swimming in the sea to the island to safe their life."

"Artiste (the French for artist) is a variant used in English only in this context. Use of the term to describe writers, for example, is valid, but less common, and mostly restricted to contexts like criticism."

"My hubby is sitting next to me and lisening song and searching something in internet. He is very interested in playing games using facebook, love to chat in whatsapp. But he have no time to spend with wife and kids with caring word. Only god have to change his mind. No love or care."

"An artist is a person engaged in an activity related to creating art, practicing the arts, or demonstrating an art. The common usage in both everyday speech and academic discourse is a practitioner in the visual arts only. The term is often used in the entertainment business, especially in a business context, for musicians and other performers (less often for actors).

Mini: what is digital piracy?

Jacob: Piracy occurs when someone other than the copyright holder copies the product and resells it for a fraction of the cost that the legitimate producer charges. Is the content being sold at other places, but offered free to download? If yes, it's most probably pirated. Is the seller a known, reputable company with good reviews and a positive rating? If yes, the content is probably not pirated. If you're purchasing a DVD or CD, does the packaging look legitimate with all the seals, holograms, etc. in place? If not, it is definitely pirated. Is the site offering movies that are still playing in theaters or ones that were just released on DVD? If yes, the chances of it being pirated are high. To watch unlawfully copyrighted content on demand without downloading the illegal file, the websites may stream directly or provide links to content hosted on other websites. Both hosting unauthorised content and providing links to unauthorised content is illegal. These sites are often user friendly, with content divided into categories such as genre, year or language.
